Consumption Smoothing and Marriage

Manuela Angelucci; Department of Economics, University of Arizona - USA

Giacomo De Giorgi; Department of Economics, Stanford University

Marcos A. Rangel; Department of Economics, University of Sao Paulo – Brazil

Imran Rasul; Department of Economics, University College London

Abstract:

There is a large role for moves by women at the time of marriage in explaining migration in developing countries, in particular in rural areas. We explore the relations between this mobility and risk diversification and consumption smoothing strategies among poor Mexican families.